LA JOLLA PLAYHOUSE ANNOUNCES PROJECTS FOR 2019 DNA NEW WORK SERIES

Plays by Jeff Augustin, Guillermo Calderón and Emily Feldman to receive readings, along with new musical by Mark Mothersbaugh and Kyle Jarrow, featuring skate choreography by skateboarding legend Tony Hawk

La Jolla, CA – La Jolla Playhouse is pleased to bring back for a seventh year its acclaimed play development initiative, the DNA New Work Series, a weekend of readings of new works, taking place May 2 – 5, 2019 in the Playhouse’s Rao and Padma Makeneni Play Development Center (PDC) and Seuss 1 rehearsal spaces. Tickets for the DNA New Work Series are free but reservations are required by calling (858) 550-1010 or visiting LaJollaPlayhouse.org.

This year’s projects include the musical Slam, with book by Kyle Jarrow, music and lyrics by DEVO band co-founder Mark Mothersbaugh (Rushmore, The Royal Tenenbaums), adapted from the novel by Nick Hornby, directed by Sean Graney, and featuring skate choreography by skateboarding legend Tony Hawk; Airport, written and directed by Guillermo Calderón (Playhouse’s Neva); The Best We Could (a family tragedy), by UC San Diego MFA graduate Emily Feldman, directed by Kate Eminger; and Jean, Jonah, and the Ginger Karl, by UC San Diego MFA graduate Jeff Augustin (Playhouse’s The Last Tiger in Haiti), directed by UC San Diego MFA graduate Joshua Kahan Brody (Playhouse’s The Last Tiger in Haiti).

The DNA New Work Series offers playwrights and directors the opportunity to develop a script by providing rehearsal time, space and resources, culminating in a public reading. This process gives audiences a closer look at the play development process, while allowing the Playhouse to develop work and foster relationships with established and up-and-coming playwrights.

“DNA has become one of the Playhouse’s most highly-anticipated and successful pathways for developing new work, with several projects going on to receive full, world-premiere productions in our seasons,” said Playhouse Artistic Director Christopher Ashley. “Patrons have the opportunity to take part in the birth of these new works while giving playwrights invaluable support and feedback in the early stages of their development process.”

The DNA Series has been a launching pad for numerous shows that have gone on to productions in future Playhouse seasons, including Chasing the Song, by the Tony Award-winning team of Joe DiPietro and David Bryan (Memphis, Diana); Pulitzer Prize winner Ayad Akhtar’s The Who & The What; Michael Benjamin Washington’s Blueprints to Freedom; UC San Diego MFA graduate Jeff Augustin’s The Last Tiger in Haiti; Miss You Like Hell, by Pulitzer Prize winner Quiara Alegria Hudes and Erin McKeown; Kill Local, by UC San Diego MFA graduate Mat Smart; UC San Diego MFA graduate and current playwriting faculty member Naomi Iizuka’s What Happens Next; as well as Melissa Ross’ The Luckiest and Keith Bunin’s The Coast Starlight in the upcoming 2019/2020 season.

All DNA New Work Series projects take place with no scenic, costume or staging elements, and actors will have scripts in hand. The creative teams will be available for interviews for feature coverage; however, in order to preserve the developmental nature of the program, DNA Series presentations are not open to review.

2019 DNA Projects

Airport on Thursday, May 2 at 7:30pm (PDC)
A La Jolla Playhouse Commission
Written and Directed by Guillermo Calderón

Something ominous is happening in the town of Elizabeth, New Jersey. Elizabeth warns her daughter Elizabeth that a psychopath is targeting their cow, Elizabeth. But within this story lie other coded stories, all concocted by a woman torn between leaving and staying. Guillermo Calderon's wildly original new commission for La Jolla Playhouse is a dark comedy about navigating a world of corrosive fears and impermeable borders.

The Best We Could (a family tragedy) on Friday, May 3 at 7:30pm (PDC)
By Emily Feldman
Directed by Kate Eminger

"Are you sitting down? Maybe you should sit down." A daughter's road trip with her father becomes a theatrical journey across more than just state lines in this funny, wise and heartbreaking new play from UC San Diego MFA graduate Emily Feldman.

Slam on Saturday, May 4 at 2pm and 7:30pm (Seuss 1)
Book by Kyle Jarrow
Music and Lyrics by Mark Mothersbaugh and Kyle Jarrow
Adapted from the novel by Nick Hornby
Skate Choreography by Tony Hawk
Directed by Sean Graney

Sam, a 17-year-old kid from a troubled background, finds refuge in the world of skateboarding and through imagined conversations with his idol, Tony Hawk. But when he falls in love with a girl, it seems like everything’s looking up – until it all comes crashing down. Mark Mothersbaugh and Kyle Jarrow’s musical adaptation of Nick Hornby’s novel is a funny and edgy exploration of young adulthood and what it means to wrestle with dreams and disappointments.

Jean, Jonah, and the Ginger Karl on Sunday, May 5 at 2pm (Seuss 1)
By Jeff Augustin
Directed by Joshua Kahan Brody

When Jean arrives in Miami from Haiti, he’s determined to “learn America” during a cross-country journey with his pregnant wife. Decades later, his son Jonah makes the same trip in reverse, desperate to understand his father – and discover himself. Two lives unfold side-by-side in UC San Diego MFA graduate Jeff Augustin’s (The Last Tiger in Haiti) beautiful new play about memories real and imagined. Commissioned by Actors Theatre of Louisville.

Sean Graney (Director, Slam) is a San Diego-based theatre artist obsessed with entertaining the audience. He spent two decades in Chicago as Founder/Artistic Director of the Hypocrites, where he directed over 100 plays. He is most known for adapting Gilbert & Sullivan and All Our Tragic, a 12-hour adaptation combining the surviving Greek tragedies into a 12-hour play. He was a Creative Capital recipient, participated in the TCG Career Development Program and was a Fellow at the Radcliffe Institute at Harvard. His work has been seen at Berkeley Rep, Oregon Shakespeare, Actors’ Theatre, Chicago Shakespeare, Goodman, Court, Milwaukee Rep and Steppenwolf, among others.

Kyle Jarrow (Book, Music and Lyrics, Slam) is a writer and musician who makes work for stage, film and TV. He wrote the book for the Broadway musical SpongeBob SquarePants, for which he received Tony, Drama Desk and Outer Critics Circle Award nominations. Other plays include A Very Merry Unauthorized Children’s Scientology Pageant (Obie Award), The Wildness (Lortel Award nomination), Whisper House, Love Kills and Gorilla Man. Kyle is creator and executive producer of the television series Valor, which premiered on The CW Network and can now be found streaming on Netflix. His feature film Armless was an official selection of the Sundance Film Festival. Kyle is also the songwriter and keyboardist for the theatrical rock band Sky-Pony. More info at www.kylejarrow.com

Mark Mothersbaugh’s (Music and Lyrics, Slam) works as a composer, performer, author, producer, designer and visual artist have become part of the pop culture consciousness. He first became famous as the co-creator and front man for the seminal New Wave band DEVO, whose 1980 album “Freedom of Choice” went Platinum, and “Q: Are We Not Men? A: We Are Devo” went Gold. In recent years, he has transformed into an award-winning composer for television shows and films such as Pee-Wee’s Playhouse, The Royal Tenenbaums, Rushmore, The Lego Movie and Thor: Ragnarok, and then as a fine artist who just celebrated his first 25-city art exhibition, MYOPIA, curated by the Denver Museum of Modern Art. For decades, Mothersbaugh’s music and art have been seminal to California’s skateboarding culture. In the 70’s, DEVO performed with skaters, and DEVO’s videos featured skate pros such as Tony Alva and Steve Olson. DEVO has since appeared in countless skate video soundtracks and was inducted into the Skateboarding Hall of Fame in 2013 and nominated for The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, Class of 2019.
